Department of Food Science and Technology
Food Business Management
Cygnet, OH

Lindsay listed serving as an Experience Ohio State for a Day host as a source of fulfillment for her during her undergraduate education. Lindsay has enjoyed being able to help influence a student and share her day with them. It is always extremely fun and an experience she will never forget. Lindsay is proud to have been able to give back to a college that gave so much to her.

Lindsay's academic accomplishments include: Dean's List | W.T. Reese Memorial Scholarship | International Dairy Deli Bakery Association | Eloise B. Harper Scholarship in Food Science and Technology | Dale T. Friday Scholarship | William and Glenna Yarber Scholarship | Member of Towers Agricultural Honorary.

Lindsay also noted the experience as a student employee at the Molly Caren Agricultural Center as one of her points of pride during her undergraduate experiences. After four years working in this area, her responsibilities have changed drastically from very basic tasks to more important ones. Lindsay was proud to be identified as a student leader on the site. Lindsay derives great satisfaction from Farm Science Review employment, and she says it has certainly changed her into the person she is today.

Participating in a Buck-I-Serve spring break service trip Lindsay volunteered with Habitat for Humanity in Louisiana. She found it fulfilling to volunteer her time to help build homes. Serving with Habitat for Humanity also gave her the chance to develop a variety of new carpentry skills and knowledge surrounding Habitat as an organization. Lindsay enjoyed being able to immerse herself in the culture, food and people of Louisiana. Most of all, she was proud to have been able to give back to those less fortunate than herself while surrounded by fellow Buckeyes.

After graduation Lindsay will be relocating to Longmont, Colorado to work for the J.M. Smucker Company. There, she will be working as a quality specialist in a new production facility making Smucker's Uncrustables. Lindsay is excited to start a career with such a wonderful company, and to see what adventures await her in Colorado and beyond.

Lindsay selected Dr. Mary Kay Pohlschneider to be her mentor. Lindsay details, "I first met Mary Kay as an Experience Ohio State for a Day student after making my decision to come to Ohio State. After meeting her, I knew I made the right decision, as she made me feel welcome and comfortable. Throughout my time at Ohio State, she continued to be a mentor to me as I changed my major, and later became my academic advisor. While making my decision to accept or decline my job, Mary Kay was one of the people I talked to for her opinion. I can't say enough about how much Mary Kay has helped me during my time at Ohio State, and how supportive she has been from the very beginning. I am incredibly thankful to have been mentored by her, and I am proud to call her not only a mentor, but a friend as well."
